

MC TRACKING TOOL

BY TODD MORR

This specific tracking tool comes from some friends at a church in Canada, so you can see what it might look in concrete terms. The concept actually came from another church that I work with in New Zealand, who created a form of this as a Google document. The point with both of these, or with any variation that you create for your church, is to have an ongoing way to track specific goals and progress that your groups are making. This will allow for staff, coaches, and elders to be able to quickly and clearly see how the church is really doing at any given time in terms of discipleship, mission, and leadership development. Without this, the good intentions that most churches have for their people and their groups will never happen because of a lack of specifics, follow through, and accountability.
